

THE BEST OF PORTUGAL

IN LONDON

Emily has been to the Portuguese Embassy in Belgrave Square, Annie has scoured the Golborne Road and editorial assistant Daisy has been sampling the Portuguese charms of Stockwell. Plus some other suggestions to find Portugal close to home.

A PORTUGUESE LOVE AFFAIR

Nestled among the independent boutiques on Columbia Road is A Portuguese Love Affair. The name says it all. Find beautiful soaps and traditional pottery as well as hand-made children's toys. They also run popular wine tasting evenings every few months, where five wines from across Portugal are paired with canapés from the same region. The website is coming soon, but for now their facebook page:

facebook.com/a.portuguese.love.affair contains all you need to know in terms of what's on and upcoming events.

Victoria branch of this deli may have a cult lunchtime following, there's something wonderful about perusing the Vauxhall shop as Portuguese regulars enjoy their morning espresso and chatter away in their mother tongue. And best of all is the warmth of the Portuguese staff whose enthusiasm and pride in their produce is infectious. I think I'm going to become a regular.

CLAMS AND FOOTBALL

Step off the Stockwell Road into Bar Estrela and you might as well have stepped into Portugal. This drinking spot is one of the best in the area and it's packed full of Portuguese punters from two to
